READY FOR MAY DAY

Strike Areas in New England Watched for Trouble From Agitators

Boston police, mobilized and alert, and with riot guns ready for action, were prepared today to put down any attempt at May Day violence.

Practically every man in the department was on duty. There were no days off.

The homes of Judge Albert P. Hudson of Boston and other prominent citizens were guarded by special officers. Judge Hayden's home was bombed in the May Day outrages of 1919.

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, in a general order to police, instructed them not to use force in case of trouble in calling for help. Hundreds of policemen were held in readiness in the stations for a quick dash into any territory showing signs of disorder.

IN STRIKE AREAS.

Elsewhere throughout New England, particularly in the strike areas, stricter precautions were taken. An unusual turn was given to the regular May Day celebration of the Workers of the World by the fact that the most bitter denunciation of racialism and violence came, not from a public official or capitalist, but from President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who warned organized labor of an attempt by Bolshevism to subvert the workers of America.

Rallies were held in various parts of Greater Boston, but those in the earlier part of the day were models of order.

FEDERAL INQUIRY.

For weeks past Department of Justice agents have been quietly investigating the use of force by radicals and any attempt on their part to incite riots and disorder with meet with drastic action on the part of the officials.

Fears have been expressed regarding the situation in the Pawtucket valley, where deputy sheriffs have commenced serving election notices on the families of strikers who are occupying houses owned by the mill companies.

National guardsmen on duty in the valley have had their death-litigation orders rescinded by Governor San Souci and remained at their posts.

In Lawrence some apprehension was felt by the authorities on account of the threat of the One Big Union to declare a general strike for twenty-four hours.

2 Doomed Men Beg for Hour Lost by Daylight Saving

By Associated Press

Onling, N. Y., May 1.—Protesting that the daylight saving movement had robbed them of an hour of life, William Bell and Jacob Rosenwasser, who are doomed to die in the electric chair a week from next Thursday night, begged Warden Lawes today to return the death house clock to standard time.

Other prisoners serving terms due to expire within the next four months welcomed the advance of the prison clock.

SAILOR UNDRASSES, SLEEPS IN DOORWAY

Found curled up in the doorway of a Copley square store, with his clothes removed and neatly folded sailor-fashion, William J. Hagan, a sailor on the U. S. S. Florida, was taken to the Back Bay police station and thence to the City Hospital.

Police found him snoring peacefully on his cold bed and removed him in haste. He is thought to have been suffering from alcoholism.

HUNT FOR MISSING JACKSON

Brother Leaves Laurence to Trace Kin Revealed by Death of Parents

Lawrence, May 1.—Winfield Warren, son of Mrs. Freeman Jackson, who died with her husband in Brooklyn under circumstances indicating a poison plot, left for New York today in answer to a telegram from the New York police requesting information concerning his brother, Russell D. Warren, a chemist, missing since 1918.

An inquiry is on into the mysterious circumstances concerning the dropping from sight in Chicago of the younger brother.

Following his disappearance, Mrs. Warren made a new will, leaving her property to her son Winfield. The bodies of the woman and her husband, Freeman Jackson, were found in their apartments in a Brooklyn hotel.

Russell graduated from Andover Academy in 1906 and four years later received his degree from Harvard. He specialized in chemistry. He studied at Annapolis, but was forced to resign on account of bad eyesight.

Stories here are rife of the boy's escapades at Annapolis. Once it was said he was sentenced to stay in a cell as a "calmer down" for his lively disposition. He convulsed students in two years.

HUSBAND BEAT HER, SAYS WIFE

Charges and Counter Charges Are Made in the Cook Divorce Suit

Love letters that passed between Wm. Spencer Cook, former Harvard instructor and now a traveling fellow of the American Archeological Institute, and his wife, Mrs. Harriette Buck Cook, of 179 Brattle street, Cambridge, will feature in the trial of Mrs. Cook's suit against her husband, on the list for trial at the session of the divorce court which opened in East Cambridge today.

Among other charges made by Mrs. Cook in her petition is the one that the scientist used abusive and insulting language to her and was in the habit of striking her, causing her "much bodily harm and mental anguish."

The rugged troubles of the Cooks, which both husband and wife admit began almost immediately after their marriage, came to light in a sensational manner last November when Mrs. Cook caused the arrest of the scientist.

She charged him at that time with having broken into her home. Mr. Cook admitted the trespass and said he had gone to the house to get books and other property of his, which he had been forced to leave in the place.

When the scientist was arraigned the charge was dropped, but the divorce suit was pressed. Mr. Cook promised to remain away from the Brattle street house.

In counter charges Mr. Cook declares that his wife and her former husband, now a professor at Tufts University, had plotted to force him to agree to a divorce.

He has filed a bill in equity seeking to obtain his wife's scientific books and to have her husband's name withdrawn from him at the Brattle street house, in order to compel restoration of certain letters by her first husband.

U. S. CAPTAIN IS SHOT IN RIOT IN GERMANY

Mayence, Germany, May 1 (By the Associated Press).—During a May Day demonstration here today a captain of the American army was wounded by the mob.

A column of May Day demonstrators was marching through the main street when through a mob's take in steering the American captain's automobile ran into the procession.

The machine was stopped immediately, but it was at once surrounded and attacked by a shrieking, furious mob, which began to mount the car.

The captain, believing his life to be in danger, drew his revolver. One of the men in the crowd tried to disarm him, but the revolver was discharged and the officer sat back, wounded in the shoulder.

The chauffeur tried to aid the captain, but the crowd turned on him, covering him with blows.

French gendarmes extricated the American car and made several arrests.

LA FOLLETTE'S NEPHEW IS GRANTED DIVORCE

Chicago, May 1.—Joseph M. La Follette, nephew of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, recently obtained a divorce from Georgia Howard, an actress, it became known today with the arrival of the young man, who is an artist. The divorce was granted here, incidentally, stating La Follette related that his uncle in his youth had aspired to be a tragedian.

WIFE DRIVEN TO DEATH BY LOVE AFTER QUARREL

In the wake of the tragic death of Alice Harbourn, Dorchester stenographer and only girl in a family of educators, who was found dead from veronal poisoning after she learned the man she loved was married, there came today astounding disclosures.

The man in the triangle was Albert Ayer of Winthrop, married and father of two sons.

Mr. Ayer rushed from his bedside to stay the hand that raised the death point to the girl's lips, he told police.

Today Mrs. Margaret Buck of No. 13 Fairbanks street, Brookline, where the couple met by appointment a few days ago, charged that Mr. Ayer had applied the girl with veronal to take for vengeance.

The girl died today in a West End hotel.

She left her home Friday, following a scene the night before when she was ordered, by her father to give up the man she had loved.

On Wednesday night she fainted in the back room where her husband denounced Mr. Ayer for his alleged perfidy.

Mr. Ayer then declared, according to Mrs. Buck, that he was about to divorce his wife and marry the girl.

"I'll stick with her to the end," she said. "Alice Harbourn knew he was married."

It is the most astounding triangle that Boston has known in a decade. On one side is the faithful love of a wife, who admits knowing the girl was a vibrant part of her husband's life. On the other are tangled statements charging the man with perjury.

"The child of today may be a cat, but you cannot teach a cat to be a child. Children are not cats, but they are not children either. They are a new breed, and they are a new breed of cat."

By the Associated Press. Dublin, May 1.—An extraordinary notice has been served by the local committee of the independent Sinn Feiners on the leading Sinn Feiners supporting the Anglo-Irish treaty, one of whom was imprisoned by the British in Dublin, says the Sunday Independent.

The commandant warns them that their movements are being dangerous and inimical to the Irish Republic, and that if any action be taken against the executive council (independent) troops in that area, they will be held personally responsible.

With tears welling in her eyes she stamped out of the dining room and a few seconds later the family heard the report of a pistol shot from the direction of the girl's room.

They rushed in and found Katherine lying on the bed with a wound in her abdomen. The revolver lay on the floor where it had dropped from her grasp. Princiotta said that the revolver was his property.

South Boston police were notified and the girl taken to the City Hospital. Doctors will probe for the bullet.

CITY OBSERVES EGGSHARMY CENTENNIAL

Mayor Opens Program by Unfurled Flag Before Big Crowd at City Hall

Mayor James M. Curley, tonight at 11 o'clock today, just one hundred years from the hour when Boston formally became a city, pulled the lanyard releasing the Boston Centennial flag on its pole in front of the City Hall. It was the first of a number of celebrations in which Boston observed her 150th anniversary as a city.

Troops eleven and thirty-four, the latter a Chinese troop, of the Boston Scouts, were there to take part in the ceremony, and Alexander Swift of Stone's Band played "America," "Assembly" and "Victory" on the cornet.

Mayor Curley then made a short address.

Among the other ceremonies was a mass meeting at Faneuil Hall and a flag raising at the Customhouse.

MAJOR GIVES ADDRESS. In his address Mayor Curley told the city that it was a most fitting time for the people of the city to make their plans for the future, and the development of their country.

He pointed out that there is a vast difference between Boston of today and the Boston of 150 years ago, when the city was a small fishing village. He said that the city has grown into a great metropolis, and that it is now one of the great cities of the world.

"Always," said the Mayor, "the future of Boston has been in the hands of its people. It has been the duty of its citizens to make the city a better place for the betterment of humanity."

"We must see to it that in the future, as in the past, this service continues to grow and improve."

He concluded his address by saying that he was proud to be the Mayor of Boston on this historic day.

ALLIANCE TOWN AD TO STREET RAILWAYS. Cities and towns are allowed to appropriate $2 on every $100 of taxable valuation to contribute to the cost of street railway service by a bill reported favorably in the House today.

The appropriation may be made for the purpose of levying a special tax on the property of the street railway companies, or for the purpose of making a loan to the companies.

An adverse report was voted on the bill to require the State to buy Boston Elevated bonds.

HEARING TO BE HELD ON OIL PLANT PROTEST. As a result of a petition signed by 100 residents of East Boston, a hearing will be held at the City Hall tomorrow morning to hear the protest against the proposed oil plant in Chelsea and East Boston.

The protest is based on the fact that the proposed plant would be a source of danger to the neighborhood, and that it would be a nuisance to the residents.

The hearing will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and will be presided over by the City Engineer.

2,500 RIDE MAYOR HANDS VALUABLE PRIZES TO WINNERS

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Before an enthusiastic throng of 23,000 persons the Boston American's third annual social bicycle run was carried out, the most successful affair of its kind yet staged.

Twenty-five hundred men, women and children from all parts of New England participated, and prizes valued at thousands of dollars were given to the best riders.

Weather conditions were ideal and a detail of fifty policemen and two sergeants, in command of Sergeant Murphy from Boston, maintained perfect order at Franklin Field. Captain James McLevitt was present in person to see that all conditions were satisfactory.

Prizes were awarded at the field by Mayor James M. Curley, who was accompanied by Deputy Park Commissioner William P. Long and Joseph M. Walsh.

MADE PROMPT START.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the word to start was given by John W. English, in charge of the run for the American. Heated by the presence of the Mayor, the long procession, some of the riders on daily decorated machines, and others pedaling "bikes" of ancient vintage, got under way at Copley Square.

Streaming through Dartmouth street and swinging into Commonwealth avenue, with the judges and alternates in the lead, the riders moved at a slow pace into the Fenway, to the accompaniment of cheers and shouts from admiring small boys.

One of the leaders was "Jimmy" Moran, famous professional rider and sashy racer, who has, for years, been a popular idol among bicycle fans.

In Johnstonway the motor cycle officers were joined by three others who assisted in keeping the road open, and prevented a riot when the Mayor's house was reached.

Continuing into the Arborway the riders rode through Franklin Park, thence to the Franklin Field speed.

MAYOR AWARDS PRIZES AT BICYCLE CONTESTS

MR. CURLEY GREETS A WINNER

At the conclusion of the Boston American's most successful run, Mayor Curley, at Franklin Field, distributed to the winning cyclists, the valuable and useful prizes donated for the occasion.

Way, to Westview street, to the center running track at Talbot and Howe Hill avenue.

Here Park Commissioner James B. Shea and his assistant, together with the police, had the area around the track roped off and were prepared to handle the large crowd that had gathered.

Seventy-five bicyclists, comprising St. Augustine's fire, drum and bugle corps, under the leadership of Rev. Father Richard A. Burke, were already on hand, and furnished inspiring music.

The judges took their stand outside the track, and the work of running off the cyclists began.

The judges were John McCreel of New Haven, Arthur Kennedy of Quincy, Walter L. Potter of Cambridge, Frederick A. Brummitt of Roxbury and Jacob Berkowitz of Dorchester.

In addition to the special prizes which included bicycles, tires, accessories and mobile accessories, an occasion was given to each rider.

A number of riders who have participated in each year were among the contestants, one of them being Thomas Halliday, seventy years old, of No. 79 Faxon street, Newton, Mass.

Halliday, whose flowing white beard made him the center of attraction for the movie camera men, won third prize in Class No. 1 for perfection in riding, males over fifteen.

Another was eighteen-year-old Geraldine Wyman of No. 1 Goldard street, Woburn, who rode to victory in Class No. 2, the bicycle which she won in the last year, after the sun in the run last year, after her own machine had been stolen.

MANY NOVEL ATTRACTIONS.
George H. Leavitt of North Hampton, New Hampshire, another prize winner of last year, took third prize in the Old Timers' Class. First prize in this class was taken by J. J. James of Roslindale, also a winner in the last run. Fred I. Perceval of Malden, a judge last year, took first prize in Class 1, for perfection in riding.

In many of the classes, because of the large number of entries, the judges were puzzled at times in selecting prize winners. This was particularly true in the class for decorated bicycles, many of the machines being extremely attractive.

First prize in the decorated class was won by Edward Murray, a sixteen-year-old boy of South of Needham Heights, whose machine was decorated with yellow paper flowers. He also wore a uniform from the last year's contest.

Second prize in the Old Timers' Class was won by a uniform from the last year's contest. The Continental Army, and was mounted on one of the old-fashioned "High Boy" wheels.

Mayor Curley was assisted in giving the prizes by Robert C. Moran, managing editor of the Boston American.

MISS WORTHING DENIES TRYING TO KILL SELF

Actress Explains Her Taking Poison Tablets as Being
"Terrible Accident"

New York, May 1.—Dullness, followed by a determination to build her life anew, see the reactions of Helen Lee Worthing, Boston's prize beauty, who has returned to her apartment in West Fifty-sixth street from Bellevue Hospital, where she fought successfully against self-administered venereal poisoning.

She will never return to the chorus, where she says she was the unhappy girl in the world.

Naive and wistful, the New England girl, whom artists have said is the most beautiful in the Eastern States, sat up in bed today and denied she had attempted to end her life.

"It was an accident," she said, drawing the point lace negligee about her shoulders, "a terrible accident. I came home that day sick and exhausted. I took several believing it was aspirin. My head swirled and I asked my maid to bring me more aspirin. Instead she brought tetrachloride of mercury and I swallowed two tablets."

This was her explanation of the reported attempt at suicide, she had read Freud's "Theory of Psychoanalysis" and those, piled on top of her sickening experience in a chorus girl's dressing room, made life a hideous dream.

"But I should never destroy myself," she added, "I am too curious of what life may do to me next."

A four-karat diamond twinkled on the engagement finger of her left hand, but she denied she had offered a disastrous love affair.

"There is no man in my life," she said earnestly. "Love is not for me. The ring is a relic of my Boston marriage."

"The story about a man named Jack was ridiculous. I know at least six Jacks, and all of them were as embarrassed at the newspaper accounts they left town."

She went on to tell how she had won the beauty prize in her home town, Brookline, Mass., married and divorced her husband at a time heeded the advice of "Brooklyn."

When Helen Keyes, lately one of the shining lights of the chorus of a musical show playing here, returns to the stage, the plaudits of capacity audiences will not mean as much as they have before. For John Scott Jones, her infant son, is dead.

Instead of trundling the rouchéed infant through the Fenway, the young mother is in mourning in her apartment, suite 36, No. 97 St. Stephen street. She has not yet recovered from the shock of the evening last Friday morning to find her tiny son dead at her side.

Somewhere during the night as he snuggled close beside her, the child was accidentally smothered to death. The distracted mother gathered herself together somehow to go to her theatre and go through the evening performance. Then she collapsed.

SAYS EVERY BRIDE WANTS A HOME, WITH TWO OR THREE ACRES WHERE SHE CAN GROW SOMETHING BESIDES OLD.

Every bride's ambition is to have a little home where she can make love to her husband in case he should ever come home.

She lives up a sweet little nest, and he brings home a bunch of eggs from the office and plays poker all night.

Her idea of a home was a cottage with vines growing on it, but all he could see was a house with a mortgage creeping over it.

It was her little air castle, but he let all the air out.

She's willing to spend the rest of her days in it, but he's not anxious to spend many of his evenings there.

The only time he's as happy as a hawk is when he's on one.

Before he married her he said he wanted to be a husband and the worst way, and he certainly is.

One woman said her husband was a promising home man. Always promising to come home.

Once in a while you'll find a bridegroom who'll pay a home for his bride, but her there and then for the address.

A year later he's in the neighborhood and recognizes the house, and goes in to see if she's still there.

If she's gone he goes her for a divorce.

Don't Scratch Teeth

That's not the way to fight film

Don't try to whiten teeth by using harsh abrasives. Any enamel you remove is gone forever. Polishing agents should be mild, as they are in Pepsodent. Cloudy teeth are due to dingy film. There is now a way to combat it—a scientific way. Millions now employ it. Leading dentists the world over now advise it. This is to urge that you try it free—and see how your teeth improve.

That unsightly film

Teeth are dimmed by film-coats. At first the film is viscous. But it clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and tastes. Then, too, film is the basis of tartar.

Those film-coats absorb stains, making the teeth look dingy. The ordinary tooth paste does not end it. Soapy tooth pastes even make it harder to remove. That's why so many teeth brushed daily lose their beauty just the same.

The teeth's great enemy

Film is the teeth's great enemy. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles have been caused.

Mistakes corrected

Pepsodent also corrects some great mistakes made in old-time tooth pastes. It omits all soap, all chalk. Science has proved that soap and chalk defeat proper tooth protection.

Soap reduces the starch digestant in the saliva. Pepsodent multiplies it. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth, before they ferment and form acids.

Soap reduces the alkalinity of the saliva. Pepsodent multiplies that alkalinity. That aids in neutralizing mouth acids—the cause of tooth decay.

JEWISH RELIEF FUND OVER $250,000

Taking advantage of Sunday, thousands of Jewish men and women yesterday donated their day in furthering the interests of the Greater Boston war relief campaign.

Large groups of these volunteer workers went throughout the city in solicitation of funds. The volunteer city homes are too small. The only thing you can raise is apparatus, because that can stand up.

Squash and watermelons have to have a place to sit down.

A wife likes to plant something, every year besides a husband.

The average man gets a lot of pleasure out of his home. That's why he's never in it.

But the women have the right idea. A home is a wonderful thing, and any husband and wife who have one are lucky. They never have to fight in public.

BONUS PETITION LADY RHONDA ARRIVES AT CAPITAL CAN NOW SUE FOR DIVORCE

By Universal Service.
Washington, May 1.—(Continued.) A triumphal procession from New York to Washington, the Mark train bearing the million name bonus petition collected by the Boston American and other Hearst papers arrived here.

Mayors and city officials of municipalities visited on the way turned out to welcome the petition. Thousands of additional names were added to the gigantic testimonial of the American people in favor of the bonus and the sales tax.

As the truck and its veteran escort swung over the District line to the National Capitol, cheering throngs lined the streets to bid it welcome.

No event in recent political history has aroused so much interest in official Washington as has the advent of the mammoth bonus petition. Thousands will be present when it is formally presented to Congress at noon tomorrow.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, will act as chairman of a reception committee from the United States Senate, comprising some of the most distinguished members of that body.

Congressman Lester D. Vile, will receive the petition from the veterans on behalf of the House. Among those who will be present with Vile is Representative Underhill of Massachusetts.

The petition and its escort will draw up in the Capitol plaza facing the east. Main entrance. Captain Samuel H. Jacobson, acting commander, District of Columbia Veterans of Foreign War, will present the petition.

MARY GARDEN ALSO TO BECOME STAGE STAR

New York, May 1.—Next Fall may see both Mary Garden and Geraldine Farrar, stars of the opera stage, in Broadway dramatic productions. Wagner, that the incomparable Mary would make a stage debut in the Autumn in "Pelléas and Mélisande," the Masterfolk play which has served her so well for many years in the operatic version.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY Princess Cantacuzene, Bridesmaid for Miss Sigourney

By BETTY ALDEN.
PRINCESS CANTACUZENE, JR.—if one may Americanize a foreign title usually—will undoubtedly receive the heartiest of welcomes when she comes on to Boston from New York the latter part of June to serve as bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Mary Sigourney and Lieutenant Commander Rochford Yelbrough Loveband of England.

The young Princess, who was formerly Clarissa Curtis of Boston, will make this an occasion to visit for some time with her parents, the Thimas Pelham Curties of Beacon street, at their Summer home, "Palham Clare," in Nahant.

It was in the quiet and historic little church of Nahant that the all-important ceremonial took place last June which transformed the popular Boston girl into the bride of young Prince Michael Cantacuzene, just a few days after the bridegroom received his sheekins from Harvard.

I recall most distinctly with a shivering pale the young couple made, for both are tall and well set up. The Princess is a distinct blonde—who has a wealth of golden hair—while her youthful spouse is quite dark complected. During the past season they have taken an apartment in New York at No. 33 East Sixty-first street, and have, quite naturally, taken a rather prominent part in the May festivities occupying the attention of Gotham's smart set.

Approach of this—the one-time Clarissa Curtis and the Prince were among the guests at the wedding of Grant's tomb last week to attend the commemoration of the centenary anniversary of the birth of General Grant.

Princess Michael Cantacuzene is a great-granddaughter of the man whose name she carries, when mentioned before the Mason-Dixon line. Prior to her marriage to the Russian nobleman, Prince Michael's mother was Julia Dent Grant.

Every once in so often one hears that Prince Cantacuzene Jr. is planning to take his bride to Russia this Summer. I am informed, however, that such rumors are like Mark Twain's death, "grossly exaggerated" for the couple have no intention whatsoever of leaving the soil of the good old U. S. A. for some time to come.

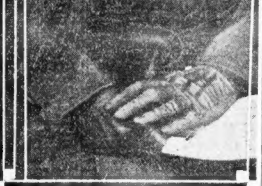

It will be remembered that Miss Sigourney—at some wedding last month Princess Cantacuzene will be one of the attendants—was one of the bridesmaids at the former Clarissa Curtis' marriage. The other bridesmaids were Misses Rosemond Johnson, Penelope Curtis, Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, Lena Turnbull and Josephine Cogswell—Miss Dorothy Curtis Jordan serving as best cousin's maid of honor.

Speaking of Mary Sigourney, everyone who has seen "Now and Then," the clever Vincent Club show—is still wondering how in the world anyone can do the impossible thing which which she did last night in the famous "Scarce Dance"—one of the "unachievable" of the many hits in "Now and Then."

The engagement of the youngest daughter of Mrs. Henry Sigourney of Beacon street and the North Shore to the young English naval officer, was announced the Customs News of the theatrical came all the way from Bermuda, where Miss Sigourney and her major were visiting, so the former might see for a while, at least, her fiancé.

FORTY TONS OF DRUGS ENTERED U. S. IN YEAR

Declaration that forty tons of morphine—enough to supply every man, woman and child in the United States with four grains—had been imported into this country in 1921 was made before the 44th annual meeting of the United States Customs Service at New York City.

The meeting was devoted itself to a consideration of the drug evil. Dr. Carlisle Simon and Chase, who is secretary of the New York branch of the Society, detailed his experiences.

He declared that one ton of morphine would have supplied the needs of the United States in 1918. Dr. Carlisle Simon, a deputy commissioner of the New York police department, said that there are nearly 400,000 drug addicts in the United States, and added that the drug pedlars make annual profits which run into the millions.

Both speakers urged support of the Jones-Miller bill, now pending in Congress.

Dr. Simon said that the Massachusetts drug squad, now numbering some 14 men, should be enlarged to a permanent of over 100 workers.

Dr. Lemuel Murphy, president of Boston University, also spoke.

'Firefly' Frocks Are Latest in Paris Dance Halls

If the men decide to drop their tools, more than $1,000,000 worth of half-finished shoes will be exposed to ruin. When Lynn factories were closed by strikers in the past, enormous damage to unfinished work was caused by rats.

DEAF MUTE HELD AFTER SALE OF "WHITE MULE"

A deaf mute, Jacob Kaplan, who can neither read nor write English and who apparently does not understand the customary sign language, is being held at the 1st street station to answer a charge of illegal sale of liquor. He was arrested by officers David and Perkins at No. 121 Brighton street, West End, after it is alleged, he had sold a half barrel of "white mule" for one dollar. When they displayed their badges he began uttering unintelligible cries, and a crowd gathered. Failing to understand what had happened, the crowd sympathized with the prisoner, and for a time the officers feared serious trouble.

FIANCE OF SLAIN GIRL IS FREED

By International News Service.
Hempstead, N. Y., May 1.—Police today had made no progress in solving the dramatic mystery surrounding the murder over two weeks ago of Miss Gertrude Han. The case is expected to be solved today when the body was found in the basement of the United Presbyterian Church parsonage last Thursday.

It had been established today by medical experts that the cause of death was suffocation, caused by blood vessels and absence of blood from the heart leading to this conclusion. The avenue of the murder remains unknown.

The police arrested John J. Wyman, her former fiancé, who was freed today after having established an alibi.

DRUGS SEIZED; WOMAN HELD IN RAID

Worcester, May 1.—Police raided an apartment in the Madison Block seized a quantity of morphine and arrested Mrs. Ella Griffin, twenty-four years old.

Plan to Raise Fund for Memorial to East Boston Hero

Comrades and friends of Frederick J. Carey, killed in the St. Michael drive in the World War, who in his memory formed the Frederick J. Carey Association, will hold a May party to-morrow night at Music Hall, East Boston. Funds will be used for a memorial to the late soldier. Assisting in the affair is Miss Elizabeth Walsh.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND COMMENT

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE MOTION picture contest is on. On Saturday at 11:30 the first ballot was cast. The king and queen of moviemaking will be chosen when the ballots are counted in the hall room of the Hotel Astor, New York, on May 8. The proceeds of the voting—each ballot costs ten cents—will be given to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

The send-off was interesting. Charlie Chaplin has bought 1,000 votes for the contest and has given them all to little Jackie Coogan, thereby giving the famous "Kid" a good chance of becoming royalty.

HOLCBAR FOR GOLDWYN
THIS GOLDWYN company is becoming something to think about. They have signed up no less a director than Allen Holubar for the filming of their $10,000 prize story, "Broken Chains."

The Goldwyn concern has been interested in experiments for some time. They were the first ones to decide that the writers were as important as the players or directors. From that idea evolved the "personality" theory—looking for players with personality as well as beauty. There have been, they believe, too many "pretty dolls" in pictures and not enough brains. And now they are signing up some of the best directors on the coast to coach these writers and "personality" players.

MORE SHEIK
"THE SHEIK'S" Sister, or maybe it was "The Sheikh's" Wife. I'm not certain which, followed on the heels of "The Sheikh." Now we hear that Al St. John is about to start work on "The Village Sheik" and burlesque the others. This "sheik" movement is almost as serious as was the wave of "mother" stories last year.

Paramount, incidentally, is working on a new desert story, "Burning Sands," that makes "The Sheikh" the publicity hounds indicate, look as if it had been written about Main street. Milton Sills and Virginia Hawley head the cast. RICHARD DIX FOR 'CHRISTIAN'

EMBROIDERY is important this season, and the sleeve is even more so, which is a very good reason for the Rumanian embroidery to be concentrated on the full peasant sleeve of a daytime frock of white linen from Lelong. This model suggests for itself a sleeveless jacket of matching fabric.

THE smartest feature of a straight frock of gray covert cloth, designed by Paquin, is the gaudet-cuff used to finish its narrow sleeve; Paris in more than a few instances prefers the close sleeve to the wide one for its simple frocks, with something unusual in the way of a cuff.

The winklele sections that trim bodices and skirts, and the binding, are of self material. Pearl buttons edge the bias opening of the bodice.

guiding megaphone of Maurice Tourneur is being sent out from the Goldwyn studios bit by bit.

Mr. Tourneur sailed for England on Saturday with his camera men and scenario staff. As yet no players have left. It is said that Richard Dix will have the role of John Storm and that he will leave for London and the Isle of Man within a short time. There is a rumor, too, that Miss Busch will be seen as Gloria Quayle.

GRIFFITH COMING HOME.

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH'S visit overseas was not the lengthy affair that one was prepared to believe when he sailed two weeks ago. He simply stopped in England to see how his "Orphans of the Storm" was faring with London audiences and looked over the motion picture situation among English exhibitors. He is due back in New York on Wednesday. His future plans have not yet been made public.

WOMAN KILLED IN 18-STORY PLUNGE

New York, May 1.—Mrs. Rose Grainger, mother of Percy Grainger, the famous Australian pianist, was killed in a plunge from the eighteenth story of the Aeolian Building.

Whether she jumped or fell from a window in the office of Mrs. Antonio Sawyer, manager for the pianist, has not been definitely determined. At first the police recalled the death as "suicide," but later changed it to read "either fell or jumped."

Her son has been notified in Los Angeles, where he is on a Western concert tour. Mrs. Grainger is said to have been worth a million dollars. She has been complaining of ill health recently.

The O'Sullivan Heel Company
131 Hudson Street, New York, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

I am a Long Island commuter who recently had an interesting proof of the protection that your heels give.

Hurrying for my train on a frosty morning, I clamped both hands over my ears to keep them warm. To my great surprise, I found I could hear as well as feel the jar of each step—a peculiar dull thud unlike any other sound.

The next day was just as cold and I put my hands over my ears again. But this time I happened to be wearing shoes which the repairman had equipped with rubber heels. There was no jar!

It convinced me. From now on, rubber heels are going to be on every pair of shoes I own.

Sincerely yours,

Richard J. Murphy

THIS letter from a well-known New York business man tells its own story.

The price of O'Sullivan's Safety Cushion Heels to you is generally the same as the price of other heels, in spite of the fact that O'Sullivan's cost the dealer more. Your repairman could make a bigger immediate profit on any one of half a dozen substitutes—but when he puts on O'Sullivan's, he knows you'll bring trade to him again.

BOSTON AMERICAN'S BICYCLE RUN HAD EVERYBODY ON THE RUN

HAVE YOU KNICKED A PRIZE YET? Miss Marion Horvath of No. 83 Hancock street, Boston, is today's Pretty Knickerbocker Girl. A Check for $5 will be mailed to her. Send photos to Pictorial Editor, Boston American.

MAKING THE WHEELS GO 'ROUND! Did you see the Boston American's Social Bicycle Run? If you didn't, you missed a rare treat! Here the vanguard of the army of cyclists, several hundred strong, appeared speeding down Commonwealth avenue on the way to Franklin Field, where the concluding events of the ride were held. Observe the curious mixture of "bikes." All types greeted the gaze, even to one (in the front rank) which boasted of big whirling propellers. "Highboys" and "bone-shakers" had to make a laugh out of the big gallery along the way.

A YOUNG MAN OF OLD CHINA! Gerald Philip Burns of No. 21 Beach road, Lynn, who will appear in an important role to Mrs. William S. Butler's May Festival at Mechanics Hall.

MISS ELEANOR WEISS, who assisted at one of the tables in connection with the Ladies' Catholic Club fashion review and dancing party held at the Hotel Vendome.

THOSE BLUES! An ideal head covering for New England women is this little toque of dainty blue. Just the thing for golf or motoring in the wind. Blue is rapidly coming into popularity.

"CLEAN UP OR SHUT UP!" That's the frank but enthusiastic motto of these two North End youngsters, who started out early to make "Clean Up Week" a success.

QUICK, WATSON, THE ARNICAI! Bernard Deschamps of Boston, and his 100-year-old bicycle, which attracted considerable attention at the Boston American's Bicycle Run. Only a here could ride it!

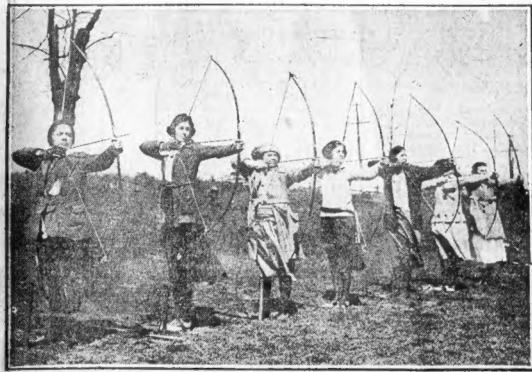

JUNE IS NIGHT! Miss Armaise N. Burnett of Ware street, West Somerville, who will become the bride of W. F. Hobbs of Somerville early in June. She is a graduate of Deas Academy. Mr. Hobbs is a Dartmouth graduate.

USING ELBOW GREASE TO MAKE SOAP! Wellesley College girls do other things besides indulge in athletics. Here is Miss Eva Joseph busily engaged in the art of making soap in the college laboratory.

ANOTHER HAT IN THE RING! John F. Dearing, well known Maine man, who has entered the United States Senatorial fight as a candidate from the Pine Tree State. Has wide following.

WELLESLEY'S ARCH LITTLE ARCHERS! Old Dan Cupid, they do say, has been shooting a lot of arrows out Wellesley College way, but apparently he isn't the only archer on the job. These college girls were photographed practicing for a coming match. Wellesley holds a high place in archery and the students are determined to retain their honors. Inter-class matches have increased their brilliant marksmanship, but constant practice is necessary to attain any degree of perfection in shooting arrows.

MISS BERTHA HARRISON, secretary of the Young Judaea Society, one of the leaders present at the convention of the organization held at No. 47 Mt. Vernon street, Boston.

"HAPPY LITTLE TOES!" Louise A. Schaefer of No. 57 Corson street, Dorchester, is but nine years old, but her nimble feet have won her wide praise. She appears at the dance recital in Jordan Hall on May 9. Daughter of Philip Schaefer, Boston musician.

THEY PLAYED TO BEAT THE BAND! There was always "something doing" during the Boston American's Social Bicycle Run, and when you got tired of looking at the curious old "bone-shakers" there was always captivating music to please the big crowd at Franklin Field, where the concluding contests were held. The St. Augustine's fife, drum and bugle corps, comprising 78 boy musicians, shown above, played everything from serious music to lighter pieces. The band was led by the Rev. Father Richard A. Burke.

EDDIE SHEVLIN PICKED TO WIN VERDICT FROM NATE SIEGAL

THEIR TEN-ROUND BOUT AT ARENA

By JACK CONWAY.

Eddie Shevlin will laugh merrily at old Pop Time as he walks left, books and right hand socks in the general direction of Nate Siegal at the Boston Arena tonight. The Hoxbury walloper is just thirty, but he can punch as hard as any kid of twenty, while he is a blue diamond in the league of clever boxing.

Shevlin will make a desperate effort to smother back the New England welterweight title, Siegal recently grabbed this top place from Shevlin and the latter is eager to regain it.

There is tremendous interest in tonight's contest. Each of the ten rounds will be jammed full of action if past performances of this pair of punchers repeat anything.

A capacity crowd will be on hand for the battle. The fact that Siegal won over Shevlin when these men last met has created more interest. In this evening's bout than there was in the former meeting of New England's premier welterweights.

Shevlin is Right and Should Win the Decision

Who will win?

That's the question that has been hurled at us by several hundred persons during the past few days.

Our answer is: Shevlin!

Eddie is right. His left arm is as fit as the proverbial fiddle. He'll be able to hook to the head and body. He'll be able to block Siegal's right hand thrusts.

Wise Men Are Stringing Along With Siegal

The "wise" men are backing Siegal. They apparently view things differently from this writer. They are of the opinion that Nate's natural ability, aggressiveness and punching power will gain him the award. They point to the fact that the tussle will be at catchweights, which will enable Siegal to enter the ring at his best.

Siegal was at catchweights when he punched his way into the ring last night. He was at catchweights in his last contest with Shevlin. When not required to make a low poundage, Nate does not like to fight at catchweights. He is in the ring fighting for all he is worth for the entire distance.

It is argued by Siegal's supporters that the Comby-Carter entry can maintain a faster pace than Shevlin. They contend that Nate does not tire easily and that Shevlin is tired after his long years of service in the ring.

Shevlin's Left Hand Should Give Him the Honors

As Shevlin's left arm has entirely recovered, he'll be able to hook to the head and body with deadly effect. Of course there is a possibility that the arm may not work so well in an actual battle as it did in the arena, but we are banking on Shevlin being able to carry on the full ten rounds without suffering a recurrence of the old injury.

Siegal, very naturally, will force the issue. This is his method of fighting. But in order to win he'll have to score. And with the Shevlin left arm working at 100 per cent, it won't be a very easy task for Nate to send his wallop breezing to their mark.

When Shevlin and Siegal last met, Nate scored repeatedly with right hand hooks to the head and body as Shevlin couldn't block them with his injured arm.

Fans Should Witness Fast And Furious Battle

Regardless of the outcome of the bout, the fans should witness a sensational battle. Shevlin and Siegal always furnish a regular quartet. They have met four times in ten matches, was crowned with the title Shevlin grabbed two decisions, one went to Siegal, while the other was a draw.

Gustin and Drew in the Semi-Final Bout

Beverly Gustin of South Boston and Johnny Drew of Worcester will box in the semi-final of the South End. Young Dumas, of the South End and Frankie Ryan of Everett will box eight frames. They will Jack McEllin of Somerville and Eddie Record of Manchester, N. H.

Reservations may be secured during the day at the Arena, at downtown offices, No. 35 Court street and in the evening at the Boston Arena.

Chick Suggs Risks Title in Bout With Elkins

TIGERS PROTEST STAR CHISOX HURLER

By BERT WALKER.

Detroit, May 1.—It is a pity that such a magnificent game as that pitched by Charlie Robertson yesterday—perhaps the best game ever pitched in the history of the world—may be barred because it was tainted.

Umpire Nault will submit a number of balls, the side of which had been smeared with a substance resembling crude oil, to Ban Johnson.

Nault threw out balls perfectly clean. After a few pitches, Tiger player would call for a ball, and its pristine beauty had been destroyed by a great splash of black oil, it is declared. Robertson denied tampering with the ball.

It was asserted that if he didn't use oil one of the other Chicago players had grease of some kind to smear on the ball.

Robertson did not allow a man to reach first base. There wasn't a safe hit made off his delivery. Six men fanned.

Dr. J. C. Robertson, the Detroit physician, a authority for the statement that balls had been smeared with crude oil. He would not charge Robertson with it, but he did assert that he saw evidence on almost every ball pitched.

Most of the players went out by the infield route for only six went out on bases to the outfield.

The "grease" ball is something new in football and is not allowed, nor is the use of any foreign substance.

Robertson is a newcomer to the league. For three years he has been with Minneapolis. In the American League he was known as the "White Sox" three years ago from the Sherman, Texas, team.

The Sox paid $2500 for him for the understanding that if he kept him they would add $1,250. After a brief trial the Sox notified him that they didn't want him and asked what was to be done with him.

They received no reply and they turned him to Minneapolis, where he has been ever since, receiving a tryout with the Sox and the White Sox.

This year Judge Landis looked into the status of Robertson and the White Sox headed off the investigation by paying the Sherman team the $1500 balance and now it is the property of the Sox.

For this year Robertson has beaten Cleveland one game and in the spring he beat the Detroit Tigers. But prior to this season he had done nothing worthy of note.

In holding Detroit hitless and not permitting a Tiger to reach first base, Charlie Robertson, White Sox pitcher, took his place in what is perhaps the most select circle in major league baseball.

Only five pitchers performed the feat, up to yesterday, and three of the games were played more than forty years ago. Of the later day pitchers only Cy Young and the late Addie Joss enjoyed the distinction which came to the young White Sox pitcher.

GIRL GOLF CHAMPION SHOWS STAR SHOTS

By F. O. THAYER.

Wollaston members were given a treat when the Massachusetts State champion woman golfer, Miss Clema Collett, visited the Montclair links and showed to the local members her wares in the golfing line.

Those who were fortunate enough to watch the mixed four-ball match were not disappointed in the performance of this young golfing expert and were deeply impressed with her graceful style of execution.

Many in the audience were holding the coming national championship for the first time and the distance Miss Collett got on her two shots, in the teeth of the wind, amazed the bystanders as well as those with whom she was playing.

Therophilus King, a charter member of the club, had arranged a mixed four-ball match, with Miss Collett playing with the writer against Ted Tewksbury and Mrs. Helen Felton.

The former pair won, counting a point for best ball and a point for combined scores. Mrs. Felton frequently won by getting long distances off the tee so that many who had not known who she was believed that it was Miss Collett.

The latter scored an 83, with one or two putts approximated, and a terrific hurricane which swept the links, caused many of the men to comment that they wished they could do as well.

Mr. Tewksbury had the best score, an 84, which was not helped any by an eight on number eleven. On this hole, directly behind a strong head wind, 67 yards, Miss Collett was in the midst of the green with two beautiful putts and a make.

She scored the only five at this hole of the four players. With possibly a golf course exception, the

DUNDEE TAKES ON TENDLER FRIDAY

New York, May 1.—The lightweight situation promises to become somewhat clarified as the result of the matching of Lew Tendler and Johnny Dundee in Madison Square Garden here May 6, as the winner will have a straight road to a championship battle with Benny Leonard, which the title-holder can hardly deny criticism.

Dundee is considered the junior lightweight champion and has won from most of the boys in his class. Tendler has fought his way to a place as one of Leonard's closest rivals and by many is considered the superior of Leonard within the lightweight limit.

Strength in Wrong Place

Interesting, but Brain, Not Teeth, Counts

Copyright, 1922, Rex Company

Holding a 200-pound jaw suspended from his teeth. Max Orlando, Chicago, defeated two San Francisco blacksmiths, with heavy sledge, to knock it out of his grip—and they failed.

THE STRONGEST JAW

Remarkable thing to hold 200 pounds of iron suspended from your teeth with such force so as to make it impossible for two blacksmiths to make you drop it, each armed with a sledgehammer. But what this man is doing is of course NOT USEFUL.

One hundred thousand years ago, when our ancestors had enormous canine teeth sticking down below the upper lip, used them in fighting each other and perhaps in fighting the animals, the power of the jaw was important many ways. Now it is important in one way only, FOR CAREFUL, PERFECT CHEWING.

Little by little power has moved from the jaw to the brain above. This has been a very good thing for the individual and for the human race.

This picture is republished from the "AMERICAN PICTORIAL," most interesting illustrated newspaper, published every day with the New York American.

You can imagine how important the teeth and thorough chewing are to the body, since nature has developed in our jaws those muscles so powerful, that we use almost unconsciously and without fatigue. You have bitten your cheek, your tongue or your finger, accidentally, often enough to know what the slightest absent-minded bits mean.

This picture of a powerful wrestler shows you what strength there is in those muscles that control the lower jaw, moving it up and down, applying power to that miniature mill, the big back teeth with which our food is ground and made fit to enter the stomach.

If OUR small jaws have such power, think what power there must be in the jaw of a lion as it seizes an antelope or a deer, breaking its backbone with the first bite. Think of the terrible power in the jaw of the thresher shark when that shark and wolfish companions fasten themselves upon the body of a whale and, holding on with terrific power, lash the whale to death with their powerful bodies, the teeth giving the grip and the body the deadly lash.

All the struggles of the gigantic whale, as it rushes through the ocean, dives and rolls, are vain. It bleeds and is soon dead.

This is to remind you that the teeth are the important machinery that takes care of the body. You read about the oldest horse in the world in his fifty-second year. The expert veterinary said at once, "His teeth are well preserved, THAT'S why he has lived so long."

Good teeth, well taken care of, well used in chewing the food, mean good digestion, good blood, good health and good work.

If the picture of the man holding the anvil in his teeth has made you patient today, then make up your mind to respect your teeth, the workshop of your body, the grinding mill of your food.

Keep them clean with a first-class brush, a good one, not an inferior, miserable article. Use good tooth powder or tooth paste regularly night and morning, use dental floss between your teeth every day, at least before you go to bed; you can get it in any drug store. Take care of your teeth and they will take care of you.

Political Prisoners

Retention in Our Prisons of Persons Whose Only Misconduct Was Exercise of Freedom of Speech Is Disgrace to Nation

The retention in our prisons of political prisoners whose only misconduct was the exercise of that freedom of speech which is guaranteed under the Constitution and which our forefathers considered the corner-stone of our liberties is a disgrace to the nation. It makes a mockery of our boasted liberty, because in every other country which was engaged in the great war the political prisoners have been released long ago.

Our courts did themselves little credit by the hysteria with which they undertook to punish men who dared to express their opinions against the recent war as Lincoln and Webster and others of our great forefathers had expressed their opinions in other wars. In Italy they released their political prisoners one week after the armistice; in France and Belgium in less than a year, and in Canada in less than thirteen months.

In England the longest sentence for public expression denouncing the war was six months, while our hysterical judges imposed sentences of several years. England, on the threshold of the war, within sight and sound of it, and fighting for her very life, kept her peace, remembered the right of minorities, remembered the virtue of freedom of speech and kept her sentences down to six months.

We, 3,000 miles away from the war, always safe and never with such a vital stake in its results, lost our heads and gave forty times more savage sentences.

Now, four years after, four years long after the other countries have released their prisoners we are still holding ours. One of the things that gave this administration its tremendous majority was the revolt of the country against the tyrannical, oppressive and lawless methods of the Wilson administration in its willful attempts to have its own way despite its constitutional restraints.

We ought to end this shame upon our institutions and upon our sense of justice by releasing these prisoners immediately. If their conscience required them to denounce the war and they did not do it by violence and did not attempt to obstruct our military preparation and conduct of the war we ought to be thankful that there are men of courage in the country who dared to express their opinions in such times.

DRUG CRUSADE SHOWS GREAT RESULTS

Boston American's "Splendid Service to Humanity," Says Former Commissioner Webber, Will Be Its Proudest Achievement, but the Good Work Must Be Kept Up

By A. C. Webber
Former Assistant District Attorney
and Former Member Drug Commission
Appointed by Governor McCall.

THE Drug Crusade of the Boston American is beginning to show positive results. This splendid service to humanity of the Hearst paper will be its proudest achievement. Newspapers that serve humanity have some reason for their existence. Those that merely print the news and are fearful of offending advertisers wonder why people cease to read them.

Judges, District Attorneys, Police and Jurymen have been reading the Boston American. This has been reflected by increases in arrests and convictions of drug sellers and the handing out of stiff jail sentences.

Bill Pending
Recently a dope seller was sent to Atlanta for three years. This is the only argument that has ever been understood by the type of criminal. If this standard can be maintained, instead of the present standard of hereafter, there is some hope for the successful control of the drug evil. It is only this country that has been so successful in its efforts to control the drug evil.

Now, the Hearst papers must keep up the task they have undertaken, and not allow public interest to lag, or else the gain will be lost.

A bill now pending before the Massachusetts Senate, the passage of which would advance another step towards terminating the power of the dope seller, is a cover by which the certain interests will oppose the passing of that bill. No one with humanity at heart can give a single good reason against adequate legislation. Peaceful objections, imaginary cases and subtle reasons are often advanced to cover the fact that certain interests will oppose the passing of that bill. trust is that the enemy is within our walls. We have been accused of delinquency and other Eastern countries by our manufactured morphine. There is strong basis for this claim.

A million and one people play auction, or play it; experts are comparatively few. It's not the easiest thing in the world to be a good bridge player; neither is it the most difficult. The game has been reduced almost to an absolute science, and mastering it is a matter of practice and intelligent study.

The author happily combines the game with a style of marked clarity and simplicity. The reader does not pause at the end of the book.

BORN today you are rather of the more serious, solid type—contemplative, critical and determined. The easiest way never appeals to you because you have a virtuous in your hard work for hard work's sake, which you will have difficulty in explaining to the satisfaction of others.

The ending year will be distressing for your business unless you are merely in a salaried position. Do not invest money.

Nor can the blame be wholly attributed to drug smuggled into this country. We are importing five times the quantity of opium than is imported by any country of Europe.

The "inexperienced" player, writes Mr. Carvalho, "should be more cautious in bidding than the more familiar with the game." When the inexperienced player learns that he passes out of the novice class, as you know if you play.

But the writer does not advise overcaution by any means. "Many players," he quotes another paragraph, "are condemnatory for overcaution, but few for undercaution. One is as bad as the other." Which is another little thing that the real auction player knows.

The book, to sum up, will prove an invaluable aid to the bridge beginner, or the player who has attained a certain skill, and found further progress difficult. It is Mr. Auction's own little compendium.

SOMEbody's BIRTHDAY

In anything but personal property. You are overcautious in work and over flippancy in play. A child born today will be extremely impressionable in early youth, and should be treated with all possible affectionateness.

It has been estimated that 50 per cent. of the opium imported goes to legitimate uses. It must be first manufactured into morphine sulphate before it can be used by the drug addicts. That is done here in the United States under the eye of our government. The drug manufacturers of this country therefore must be held strictly accountable for the frightful danger that is menacing us.

Their lobby has been fighting all legislation in Washington. Representatives of all the large chemical manufacturing houses have appeared before Congress to demand that no new law to control narcotic drugs. They say that they would lose orders from foreign countries if every order did not contain a morphine or cocaine item. In short, they are willing that this country should be ruined and become a morose and degenerate so that they can make money.

Smoke Out the Lobby
If there is a lobby fighting drug legislation in Massachusetts, let us find out who it is. The Boston American must now direct the full strength of public opinion toward locating the enemies of our walk, who are responsible not only for the spread of the infection here, but everywhere throughout the world.

The next step will be to make concrete and sound suggestions. Even the medical profession will endeavor to pass a statute here in Massachusetts which will make a crime of the use of drugs by a doctor or druggist, to have "these wild beasts of the pharmacopoeia" in their possession for any purpose. The destruction of these two drugs will be the saving of thousands. Massachusetts will take the initial step in this direction as it has in all great reforms.

In view of the above, what senator or representative can look his constituents in the face and have obstructed the passage of any and all useful legislation tending to strengthen the arm of the law in combating and destroying the most dreadful scourge of modern civilization? Those who are not with us are against us!

Accidents in Boston streets, parks and squares in 1920 caused the death of 141 persons and injuries to 3,642 others, 488 more than previous year.

SEEN AND HEARD

SENATOR ELWIN T. WRIGHT, the Rockland manufacturer, known familiarly to his younger associates as "Pop" Wright, has entertained the youthful Senate page at a house party at his Rockland home.

SPEAKER YOUNG has informed GOVERNOR CURLEY that the Rules Committee will hear him any day next week. The Mayor to name the day, Friday or Saturday. YOUNG will argue for the Mayor's order in a usual rebuttal of the opinion on the legality of the L bill.

The refusal to do away with the taking of the decennial census has saved the position of DIRECTOR WILLIAM M. G. GRUNDY, for thirty-three years in the State service. GRUNDY began work as a boy messenger in the Bureau of Statistics.

The Rotary Club has dedicated a song to GOVERNOR CURLEY to the tune of "May Day."

MRS. AMELIA FOWLER, venerable expert of the needle, who has made every Governor's dress for a quarter of a century, has completed the repairs to the official flag in the Governor's Council chamber. All four antique "Betsy Ross" Stars and Stripes.

The "First Flag of New England," repaired by MRS. FOWLER, was carried by the colonists in the English war against the Indians. The Pine Tree Flag, white, with a pine tree and the words, "An Appeal to Heaven," was said to be the first to fly over an American ship-of-war.

The Cambridge flag flew at the Washington clin when Washington took command. The Bunker flag was carried by the patriots at Bunker Hill.

Every man to his own. REG-BEN RAFFELSON, "Derky Rube," the State House messenger, will lead the exhibition during the annual May party of the Clarence L. Edwards Association, Tuesday night.

Major William J. Caver, acting fire commissioner, has certainly absorbed much of the details connected with the fire department in the short time that he has been on the job. His answers to the questions put to him by the City Council in going over the department showed that he is perfectly familiar with the organization.

The City Council seems pained because the windows of the Mayor's office are to be cleaned once a month and the windows in other parts of the hall only three times a month. Councilor Moriarty believes that the sunlight should be extended to all employees, regardless of the expense.

"Certainly this is a duty, not a sin. Cleanliness is next to godliness."—John Wesley, 1708-1791. "Clean up the City Council Chamber. It is a disgrace to the city."—Councilor James A. Leroy, Watson, 1922.

"Jerry" says that there has been no paint put on the walls for over a dozen years.

Garrett P. Serviss ON SPEED NEEDED TO KEEP IN LIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss
"How fast would you have to travel around the earth so you could always be in the daylight?" This apparently very simple question involves several things not commonly thought of, and an answer to it may tell some facts relating to astronomy that many persons would not know. Suppose the latitude is 42 degrees.

The obvious answer, of course, is that an answer to it may tell some facts relating to astronomy that many persons would not know. Suppose the latitude is 42 degrees. The obvious answer, of course, is that an answer to it may tell some facts relating to astronomy that many persons would not know. Suppose the latitude is 42 degrees.

Two Kinds of Velocity
The angular velocity would be the same everywhere on the earth, but the linear velocity on the earth's surface would be greatest at the equator and would decrease with increase of latitude. It is at the equator that it is about 1,600 miles, so that the speed would have to be only 176 miles per hour in order to go around in twenty-four hours.

Perpetual Noon.
But now with regard to the assumption that if the traveler moved westward just as fast as the earth turned eastward he would keep coasting stop with the sun, so that if he started with the sun on the noon line he would have perpetual noon, as long as he kept on traveling at that rate. This would be the case if the earth simply rotated on its axis and did not move in its orbit.

But the result of the earth's revolution around the sun is that the sun appears to have a slow motion eastward through the sky, amounting to nearly one degree per day.

The result would be that instead of keeping always under the sun, we should find at the end of the rotation, after about twenty-four sidereal hours, that it was almost 1 degree east of our meridian, and at the end of two rotations, or nearly 2 degrees, and so on until in a few months he would sink below the horizon and we should be traveling in the night instead of in perpetual day.

AUCTION BRIDGE BIDDING
By S. S. Carvalho.

ARTICLE XVIII.
Third Hand's No Trump
When the declarer has been overcalled, the partner of the overcaller has the right to bid. If he has the advantage, he should bid. If he has the disadvantage, he should not bid. If he has the advantage, he should bid. If he has the disadvantage, he should not bid.
